SHOOTING AFFRAY

MEXICAN SERIOUSLY WOUNDED BY RIFLE SHOT IN DISPUTE LAST NIGHT

What began as a so-called pleasure party ended in a tragedy last night in connection with a friendly meeting of a few Mexicans in the vicinity of Glendale avenue and Verdugo road. The principals in the affair were Camillo Delgardo and Marcello Gonzalez. Mariano Hernandez and Francisco Medina played secondary parts in the business and only escaped figuring in the list of wounded by accident. As it is Marcello Gonzalez is lying in the County Hospital suffering from a bullet wound from a 30x30 rifle, and Camillo Delgardo is in jail. The wound from which Gonzalez is suffering is a very serious one. He was hit in the knee and lay for some time on the ground without attention, sustaining serious loss of blood and running considerable risk of having the wound infected. His condition is precarious and should the wound, which shattered his knee in a horrible manner, prove fatal, Delgardo will be subject to a charge of murder in the second degree.

The Mexicans were having a reunion of some kind and came to the conclusion that it would cement their friendship more firmly if it was sealed with some of the national beverage—wine. Three dollars' worth of "dago red" was purchased and the friends began celebrating with great merriment. By and by a change came o'er the spirit of their dream and their views suddenly became antagonistic and their mental vision distorted.

From the "countercheck quarrelsome" they proceeded to the "lie direct." After that the friendship and fraternization proceedings came to a sudden end. There was a sudden onslaught of friend on friend and a melee, in the course of which Delgardo rushed into his shack, emerged with a 30-30 rifle and as his "friends" gave chase fired several shots, one of which caught the unfortunate Gonzalez in the knee.

The disputants suddenly sobered by the tragedy fled in every direction. Marcello Hernandez set out after Delgardo and grappled with him. It is said that a knife figured in the struggle, but it is not certain. To them came up Francisco Medina, who dealt so rudely with Hernandez that he was compelled to let Delgardo go. Suddenly separated the combatants went speedily, each one in the direction he pleased, leaving poor Gonzalez on the ground bleeding and in a deadly faint.

Some one sent in a call to the police who were on the spot in a trice. Chief Herald got three officers and an interpreter and searched the brush in the neighborhood of the crime without avail. He also called up the Pulliam Undertaking Parlors and after Gonzalez had had his wound dressed the Pulliams ambulance took him to the County Hospital. He also searched the Mexican quarters without avail. Leaving three officers concealed near Delgardo's shack the chief set out on a further search.

Toward 1 a. m. Gonzales came back stealthily to his shack to get his clothes and money from his wife. Immediately three officers seized him. They found that he was armed with a 32 caliber Colt revolver. He was promptly placed in jail.

Further news this morning says that Gonzalez is in a very serious condition. The bone of the knee was dreadfully shattered and he lost a large amount of blood.

ELKS PICNIC TOMORROW

Glendale will witness quite a picturesque scene when the Elks of Pasadena motor into the city tomorrow to join the brethren of Glendale on their way to the annual picnic and barbecue of the lodges of Southern California. About 100 autos will convey the brothers who will be accompanied by a band of music. The parade will assemble in front of the Elks' hall on Broadway at 10 a. m., whence they will proceed to Universal City.

It is known that the lodges of Long Beach, Los Angeles, Santa Monica, Pasadena, Whittier and Glendale will attend the picnic as organized bodies, but while Redlands and San Bernardino will undoubtedly send individual representatives to the outing those two lodges are not likely to be present as organizations.

Last year the picnic was held at Santa Susana and those who were present on that festive occasion will remember the joy and merriment that pervaded the day. The patrols of the various lodges will be present in uniform and go through some of their famous evolutions. The usual amusements will be available and some special "stunts" will be pulled off this year.

PLEA FOR CONSISTENCY

CHILDREN SHOULD HAVE OPPORTUNITY TO LEARN OF GREAT AND GOOD

Editor News: An article appearing in your issue of the 8th inst. headed "Little to Regret in Exclusion of the Bible from the Public Schools," is of interest from more than one standpoint. Strange, is it not, that the greatest opposition to the Bible in the schools comes from those who pose as its defenders and who profess to believe that its author was the one and only perfect being who ever lived on earth, who left a written message to light the pathway and to guide and direct us through the journey of life, who spake as never man spake and uttered the greatest truths in the simplest language, but withal is unfit to be read in the schools without comment?

Consistency, thou art a jewel all too rare. What conclusion can be reached other than that the opposition comes from the interests of priestcraft that they dare not let these simple and sublime truths fall on the hearts and consciousness of unperverted childhood? The great principles that are taught in the Sermon on the Mount, the ten commandments and the Golden Rule need no "religious education" in order that the mind may grasp them.

The great truths there taught practically applied to the affairs of men here and now instead of being unmeaning-mouthed words, revolutionize the world as nothing else can. We all agree that the children should have an opportunity to familiarize themselves with the lives of the great and good men who have lived in the past, who have met and overcome the same difficulties that they will meet, and yet there are those calling themselves Christians who would deprive them perhaps of the only opportunity they may ever have to become familiar with the life of one infinitely greater and wiser than any man of any age. What a glaring inconsistency to beg money from the poor of this land to send the Bible to the unlettered heathen and withhold the same book from our intelligent American youth. Some little time has been spent giving Mexico this "Christian education" preparatory to their understanding of the Bible, and as things look now, they will have to take another course. Our plea is simply for consistency.

FOREST FIRE PROTECTION EXHIBIT

With the approach of the forest fire season in the west the fire protection exhibit of the United States forest service at the Panama-Pacific exposition is arousing renewed interest. The display graphically shows in detail the measures being taken by the government to insure the early detection and efficient fighting of forest fires. This is the most important portion of the entire forest service exhibit.

In the center of the space is a large model, measuring 12x15 feet, showing a ranger district on a national forest. A lookout house and a lookout tower occupy the two highest peaks. These are connected by telephone with a ranger station which in turn is connected with various users of the forest at a ranch house, a hotel and a power house. The model shows government roads, trails and bridges, constructed primarily for the purpose of making every part of the forest accessible to fire fighters. Fire-fighting equipment boxes are placed at strategic points along trails and roads, and a fire line kept clear of inflammable material runs along one of the mountain ridges.

To one side of the large center model a full-size fire lookout house, fully equipped for discovering and locating forest fires, is built on an imitation of a great boulder on a mountain top. The house is painted white to serve as a conspicuous target for heliograph messages directed toward it by patrolmen. The building contains binoculars through which a distant forest fire is seen; a fire finder, by the aid of which the supervisor's office can be informed definitely of the location of a fire, and a special type of telephone in communication with the supervisor's office. There are also on display in this tower a portable telephone and a portable heliograph outfit for use by patrolmen. A pair of stereopticon machines are concealed within the imitation rock on which the house rests and throw pictures and descriptions on screens built into the rock, which tell the entire story of the fire protection work.

On a redwood tree trunk in another part of the exhibit is displayed a weatherproof iron box telephone, such as is placed along patrol routes

SOPHOMORE PARTY

YOUNGER STUDENTS OF GLENDALE HIGH ROYALLY ENTERTAIN CLASS OF 1915

An event, which seems to be the first of an elaborate series, planned for the senior class of 1915, was that sponsored by the Sophomore A class and given in the Masonic Temple last evening.

The seniors had an inkling as to what was to occur, but only a few days ago were cards issued bidding "ye fond and reverend" graduates to attend.

From the gleeful atmosphere which pervaded the hall last evening, the affair was most enjoyable, and from the time the grand march began until the last echoes of the music died away shall in the memory of the seniors be one joyous time.

Games were enjoyed by those who did not care to dance.

The temple was neatly decorated with the colors of the class, orange and black, lending a touch of attractiveness to the scene.

During the evening delicious fruit punch was served by the following accommodating freshmen girls: Misses Anabel McClellan, Jane Snyder, Mary Ellen O'Leary and Louise Gonzales.

The committee in charge of the affair, who so ably assisted their class president, Edward Seay, were: Mildred Wight, Catherine Phillips, Chancellor Livingston, Ben Durham and Esther Schremp.

The patronesses of the evening were: Mrs. J. G. Hunchberger, Mrs. D. W. Hunt, Mrs. Phillips, Mrs. David Imler, Mrs. Jane Ritchie.

Herbert Henning and Leo Goode furnished the music for the dancing.

Miss Darsie and Miss Turner of the high school faculty were present besides a number of other special guests.

A FULL DAY

Friday was a busy day for Mrs. Daniel Campbell of Ard-Eevin, North Glendale. Mrs. Campbell is a member of the Los Angeles Friday Morning club and attended a musical program given at the club rooms yesterday morning, having as her guests Mrs. David Black and Mrs. George Mitchell.

In the afternoon she attended a meeting of Daylight chapter, Order Eastern Star, when the present officers of the chapter entertained the 1913 officers. Mrs. Campbell was district deputy grand matron of the state of California in 1913, so was one of those honored, each of whom was presented with a handsome souvenir. The lodge rooms were decorated in pink carnations and roses for this delightful occasion and following the meeting a banquet was served.

Last evening Mrs. Campbell was present at a dinner given the officers and teachers of the Presbyterian Sunday school.

FLORAL BABY PARADE

UNIQUE AFFAIR TO BE FIRST OF KIND EVER HELD ON PACIFIC COAST

Glendale is the first city on the Pacific coast to have a floral baby parade. The Million Club of Los Angeles are planning one, but ours will be the first actually held. This unique parade will be held on Saturday afternoon, forming in front of the Better Baby Bureau, at 1 o'clock, and proceeding at 1:30 to the High School, where a splendid program will be given and the medals awarded. The baby cabs or vehicles of any kind must be florally decorated to be in the parade, and have his majesty or her majesty, as the case may be, seated in state among the flowers. There is no entry fee. Decorate your baby buggy and help make this one of the very best attractions of the festival. You may enter the parade whether your baby is registered in the Better Baby contest or not. A handsome prize is offered for the best decorated baby cab by Mr. H. H. Faries of the Juvenile Shop, a box of baby garments.

Tell your neighbors about it. Also remember the registration of babies closes very soon. The prizes in the contest are: A Gold medal for the best boy baby in the sweepstakes, a similar one for the best girl baby in the sweepstakes, a silver loving cup for the best baby from six months to a year, and bronze medals for the best babies in each of the four other classes. Do not fail to hear the fine speakers on Babyhood Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, preceding the big fiesta parade. The list includes able physicians and educators who have made a special study of baby problems. Twenty minute talks each will be given by the following:

Dr. Wood Comstock.
Dr. Maude Wilde.
Mrs. George Barry, editor Woman's Bulletin.

NEW YORK VISITOR

Mr. Charles Smith, a prominent young business man of New York City, is spending a week with his cousins, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Hunchberger, 344 S. Central. Mr. Smith has been making a two-months' tour of the west, visiting the San Francisco exposition and points of interest further north. Mr. and Mrs. Hunchberger are taking much delight in showing him the beauties of the Southland and he has already fallen in love with Glendale.

DEATH OF MRS. WISE

Mrs. Mamie Wise, aged 46 years, wife of Willis Wise of La Crescenta, died May 21, after a brief illness. She was attended by Dr. Webber. The funeral services will be held at the Wise home, La Crescenta, Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. All arrangements are being made by the Pulliam Undertaking company. Glendale friends please note.

BOULEVARD ASS'N

ORGANIZATION FORMED TO BOOST DIRECT HIGHWAY TO LOS ANGELES

The Glendale-Los Angeles Boulevard association was formed last night at a meeting in the Tropico City Hall. The following officers were elected: Prof. A. M. Brooks, president; F. E. Johnson, vice president; S. P. Veselich, secretary; Geo. B. Woodberry, treasurer The purpose in forming this association is to open up a direct highway between these cities by extending Brand boulevard from Tropico via Ivanhoe to Lakeshore avenue. This route would not only lessen the distance considerably, as the accompanying map will show, but it would also be a very interesting and beautiful driveway. It would likewise relieve much of the congestion now experienced on the other avenues and greatly assist in the development of the San Fernando valley.

A committee consisting of F. E. Johnson and C. J. Visseley was appointed to interview the Los Angeles city council and ask them to change the names of Ivanhoe avenue, Rowena and Rokeby streets so as to have a continuous boulevard from Lake Shore to the Verdugo hills under one name.

Messrs. John Logan, George B. Woodberry and John W. Usilton were appointed to wait on the county supervisors to ascertain what could be done to get a bridge across the Los Angeles river at Ivanhoe. If the citizens of Glendale are interested in this project it is up to them to arouse enthusiasm that the enterprise may be carried through with as little delay as possible.

FALLS FROM LADDER

While working at the street decorations yesterday on Broadway near the City Hall Thomas Paine, who resides on Wall street, Los Angeles, lost his balance and fell from the top of the high ladder on the decoration wagon. Hitting the ground with considerable force Paine dislocated his elbow and fractured his wrist.

Dr. H. C. Smith was in attendance and dressed the injuries. Paine was able to return home, but will not be out to work for some weeks.

VALUE OF EDUCATION

The value of an education is not to be measured alone by monetary standards. The educated person has greater power and influence for usefulness to his fellow man than the uneducated person; education begets refinement and culture and these are influential upon all who come in contact with them. The educated person, if he properly directs his trained faculties, is helpful to others in his work and an inspiration to others by his influence.

The war zone is not the temperate zone.

INTERMEDIATE SCHOOL

EXERCISES ON PATRONS' DAY ATTRACT LARGE AUDIENCE

Large crowds of parents and friends attended the exhibits and exercises at the Intermediate school, Third street, all yesterday and last night. The school rooms were decorated with displays of the children's work and the halls held specimens of their handiwork. Many articles in woodwork were greatly admired. Quite a deal of mechanical genius was displayed by some of the pupils.

In the sewing classes much practical work was shown and the exhibits in gardening and agriculture were interesting as showing the interest taken by the pupils in the beginnings of this useful knowledge. The cooking classes with their tasty productions were the center of much attention.

An audience that filled the great auditorium until there was not even standing room left listened with much interest to the program of the evening. The various numbers were loudly applauded and all showed the results of careful teaching and faithful study. Following is the program:

NORTH GLENDALE

Mrs. Alexander Mitchell of Kenneth road entertained as her guests at the Burbank, where they saw "Polly of the Circus," last Thursday evening, her daughter, Miss Barbara Mitchell, and Miss Alpha Clement of 1321 North Pacific avenue.

Mrs. S. Mayer of Angeleno Heights, Los Angeles, was the guest for the midweek of her daughter, Mrs. B. J. Lyons of 1617 Ruth street.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Williamson of 628 North Louise street entertained as their guests last Thursday Mr. and Mrs. J. Webster of Tropico.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Kirkpatrick of Ramona Acres were guests of Mrs. Kirkpatrick's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. William Alston of Valley View road, during the week.

Miss Ruth J. Wright of 1649 Ruth street returned home Friday from Hollywood, where she was attending the Brown and Curry meetings.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Longland of 1008 San Rafael street are staying in Los Angeles for a few weeks. Mr. Longland has secured a contract for building a house for Mr. James Wilbur of the city.

Mrs. Blanche Estes of 119 Avenue Twenty-nine, Los Angeles, and Miss Mary Bumgarner of Park boulevard are week end guests of Mrs. Oliver E. Wright of 1649 Ruth street.

Mr. Gordon Osborn of Lindsay, Cal., who is visiting friends in Los Angeles, will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Clement of 1321 North Pacific avenue ,over Sunday.

Richard Roberts of Penn street has a black calla lily on exhibition at the Kelley & McElroy nursery. The species of this particular lily is Arum Dracunculus and is a very rare flower.

Never go bankrupt on hope or ambition. The hopeless, ambitionless person is already half in the grave.

LOCAL TRADE RECIPROCITY

There are two sides to every question. Therefore, there are two sides to the question of patronizing the industries and stores of our home city. This idea of patronizing home trade runs through most of the cities of California. It has captured the imagination of the United States at large with the slogan, "See America First."

That this idea is right no one will dispute, at least as far as the matter of patronizing local trade is concerned. It is right and proper to aid and encourage local merchants just as a man's first duty is to those of his own household. There will be no one to gainsay the statement that no town can continue to flourish when its residents go outside of local stores and send the money they have earned in local office or business to bless and prosper the men, women and children of other cities.

Patronizing local trade promotes good feeling in a city. It makes friends of those who otherwise might become enemies. It softens personal prejudice and finally removes it. It is impossible to keep up hard feelings against a man or a family that comes to your store every day and recognizes your right to a living and a place in the scale of creation. The very fact of personal contact drives away those misconceptions of other people's characters that are so frequently a cause of misunderstandings and disputes in municipal life.

Think how much better off this city would be if all the empty stores on its principal streets were filled and were doing business. Think how much the owners of those empty stores would profit and think still further how day after day the property value of adjacent real estate would begin to mount. Property all round and throughout the city would benefit in proportion.

Consider how much Glendale would benefit by the spending within its streets of some portion of the money that is at present carried outside to Los Angeles. Take the one item of men's suspenders alone—to choose a commonplace illustration. If every man and boy in Glendale should buy what suspenders he may need in this city and not in Los Angeles, Glendale would have the benefit of the handling of at least $2000 a year. That is only one instance.

This paper is a strong believer in reciprocity in trade. That reciprocity, however, must be general. It must go out to all. Those who are patronized must expect to be patronized by their local brethren not merely because they are local, but because they supply just as good an article and at just as reasonable a price as their city competitors.

If local merchants do this the money will circulate through the city and will enable merchants to demand the merchandise they want and not take merely what is offered them. In this way will be built up businesses that can compete with those in the city. It is well to remember that both sides must work toward this desirable end—the customer as a patron of local goods and the merchant as one who is determined to keep up the standard of quality and to keep down the ratio of price.

When this has been accomplished Glendale will have real local trade reciprocity and it will not be necessary to consider so drastic a remedy as the boycotting of stores that refuse or neglect to carry stocks equal to the needs of the city.

"IN THINGS DOUBTFUL LIBERTY"

In Aesop's fable of the "Sun and the Wind" the ancient Greek tells us that the sun and the wind entered on a dispute as to which was the stronger. They made experiment on a traveler. The wind blew as it would have blown its last; it blustered and bellowed; it drove the rattling sleet showers in the traveler's face, fluttered his hair and misused him generally; but to no effect. The traveler drew his cloak the closer about him and faced the storm with determination.

Then the sun took a hand. He beamed genially on the traveler who stood the trial for a brief time, then threw aside the cumbering cloak, took off his coat and walked along in his shirt sleeves. "See," said the sun to the wind, "persuasion is greater than force."

It is the same thing in public life. There are many things in which citizens do not see eye to eye. Let them agree to differ politely and genially, without dispute, and there will be some chance of their coming to an agreement. You can never convert a man to any view by blustering at him; or by savagely growling at him; or by telling him that he is a scoundrel and a depraved brute. When the prophet listened to the message of the universe to his soul, he saw storm and tempest and fire without avail. When he found God and recognized him it was in "the still, small voice." When the Bible describes the ideal man of God it says, "He shall not strive nor cry, neither shall his voice be heard in the street."

There are many points in human behavior that, whatever extremists may think, are non-essential. In those points wherein there may well be a diversity of opinion without disagreement, let citizens remember the old dictum of St. Augustine, "In things doubtful liberty; in all things charity."

It is becoming more and more the persuasion of wide-minded and non-prejudiced people that there are many subjects which it is wiser not to mention and specially not to drag into the glare of public dispute. Let every man be persuaded in his own mind and let everyone remember that it is forbidden to judge another man's servant. "To his own master he standeth or falleth."

Public discussion, especially discussion in the newspaper of subjects that suggest immorality, is undesirable and serves no good purpose. It is the aim of this as of every other right-minded paper to uphold a high standard of morality not by suggesting guilt and discerning guilt and sin in everything that men and women do, but by seeing good and holding up that good to view.

If every public man and woman who desires the advancement of the world and the good of this community in particular would keep in view ideals of the highest and not of the lowest, pictures of what is great and good and not examples of what is debased and immoral, there would be given this world an impetus that would carry it very far forward on the road to righteousness.

There are points on which citizens undoubtedly differ. There are practices and relaxations which to a great portion of the city are pure and right and beneficial; to others they are the suggestion of evil. Let everyone keep his opinion to himself and to herself on those matters. Matters that are non-essential demand that liberty of conscience which Christ granted and which Paul affirmed.

Keep the suggestion of evil in things which the majority of good people believe to be innocent out of sight. Suggesting evil is equivalent to creating it. The best way to treat doubtful subjects is to work for your own ideal in private and to cease publicly condemning others for what to them is right and proper.

TEMPORIZING WITH FALSEHOOD

Many people in business and public life have so seared their consciences that they have come to believe that a "white lie," as it is called, a little lie, a lie told in wit or humor, any kind of a half-hatched lie, is not a real lie and does no harm. There is no more pernicious practice, however, than that of temporizing or playing with the truth. If there is no standard of truth, then there is no use in adhering to the truth in any way, and truth, honor, right, righteousness, virtue—any of the things that men have held dear through the ages—are less than nothing.

If it is the case, as the German Chancellor Von Bethmann-Hollweg asserted that treaties between nations signify nothing and are "mere scraps of paper," then there is no faith, truth or decent manhood in the world and only might makes right. That, however, is not the creed of honorable men; still less is it the creed of upright Christian people. Such people believe that every thought we think, every word we speak, every deed we do, either strengthens or weakens to some degree the fabric of character.

There is no such thing as a little lie. The very nature of falsehood is so serious that its consequences are immense and far-reaching. Every little lie, as it is called, little misrepresentation, little indulgence in any negative quality, weakens our character. There are elements in nature that illustrate the infinite divisibility of matter. A drop of common washing bluing will color an indefinite quantity of water; a drop of attar of roses will send forth a perfume that will remain a lifetime:

"You may break, you may shatter the vase if you will;
The scent of the roses will cling to it still."

In like manner the indulgence in a negative attitude toward the truth blunts the moral sense and prepares the way for some more serious breach of the commandments. Especially is this the case in business. A business firm's reputation for honesty is worth a fortune to it. A reputation for dishonesty spells bankruptcy. "Honesty is the best policy" may not be a very high-minded motto, but it is a very true and a very profitable one. There is, too, some hope of salvation for the man who begins to mould himself or his business policy on honesty. Even if he is not actuated by any higher ideal than that of gaining by it, he will inevitably find that it reacts on his character as a business man and compels him to live up to its ideal. That serves some good and is the very essential principle of honorable commercial dealing. Business today is not with cash, but credit, and credit is reputation. "I'd give a hundred thousand dollars for your good name," said one business man to another." "Why?" queried his friend. "Because I could make a million out of it," was the reply.

LASSEN A REAL VOLCANO

While there has been much discussion in the public press regarding the reality or unreality of the eruptions of Mt. Lassen and many a paragraphist has earned an honest dollar by sneering at California's latest claim to fame, the mountain itself is still doing business in a businesslike manner. Mud and lava have been thrown from the crater, swept over Hat Creek valley in eastern Shasta county, and killed cattle and driven people from their homes to the hills.

Bridges have been swept away and homes destroyed and altogether the volcano has been behaving as a respectable volcano might be expected to do. If that is not sufficient to establish its reputation the volcano may be depended on to do still more, and eastern newspapers may assure themselves that Lassen is not a mere creation of the California press.

California is full of traces of old volcanoes, as anyone who has walked throughout the length and breadth of the state can testify. Some of them even smoke at intervals and give signs of possibilities of activity at some future time. Anyway, Lassen is enough of a reality to be quoted as an attraction in these days when European travel is out of the question.

The illness of Miss Ameretta Sharp of West Cypress street is the cause of much solicitude among her many friends.

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Rice of South Central avenue are enjoying a pleasant sojourn at their home at the beach residence at Venice.

Mrs. Frank I. Marsh leaves shortly for San Diego where she will spend a week.

FRUIT AND FLOWER EXHIBITORS

A revised list of the entries of fruits and flowers for the Glendale festival has been issued. The first list was found too large for amateur exhibitors. See the revised list of entries at any grocery store on Saturday. Everyone has a chance to receive a prize at this exhibit and all prizes are to go to local exhibitors. Ribbons are to be given as trophies to outside exhibitors. See the revised list of distribution of prizes in today's issue of The News.

DELICIOUS CANDIES ON SALE AT FESTIVAL

Don't forget to patronize the delicious home made candy on sale during the festival days. You will be waited upon both afternoon and evening in the satisfaction of your sweet tooth every day of the festival. In the afternoon this delicious confection will be found on the High School grounds, or in the building. In the evening it will be on sale at Masonic hall, and at the High School. Perhaps you aren't so busy with some other part of the festival work, but that you could make a few pounds of candy for this committee, and help in that way. If you can, please notify any of the following committee by telephone: Mrs. Helen Campbell, chairman, Glendale 102J; Mrs. Leroy W. Bosserman, Mrs. Colin Cable, Mrs. C. H. Bott, Mrs. Harry Lynch, Miss Alice Frank.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Rev. W. E. Blackstone, the noted writer and lecturer, will speak at the 11 o'clock hour. Mr. Blackstone's book, "Jesus Is Coming," has been translated into ten different languages. He has spent five years in China, and expects soon to return to that country. His subject tomorrow will be "Our Hope." This will be a practical message on the second coming of Christ, concerning which so many people desire to know. Mr. Blackstone is one of the few men in the world who know how to make this subject interesting.

Sunday school 9:40. Junior Endeavor 3 p. m. Stereopticon talk on "The Life of Christ" at 7:30. This is the second in the series. An interesting set of beautifu'ly colored views will be shown. The pastor will speak.

BAPTIST CONVENTION

The Northern Baptist convention now in session in the city of Los Angeles is being greatly enjoyed by many of the local Baptists. The official delegates, Messrs. Vanderhoof and Cole, Mrs. Salisbury and Rev. Troy, have been present at most of the sessions. Also a large number of visitors from the First Baptist of Glendale, among them Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Wood, Mr. A. L. Chandler, Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Moore, Mrs. J. M. Ward, Mrs. Dr. Vanderhoof, Mrs. A. M. Hunt, Mrs. J. H. Troy, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Reed, Miss Amy Blanchard, Rev. and Mrs. W. D. Smart, Mrs. H. F. Fryer are much in evidence. It is hoped that every Glendale Baptist will find it possible to attend at least one session. The magnitude of the Baptist brotherhood and its thoroughly democratic operations are impressions that the Northern Baptist convention make lasting. It cost the local Baptist pastor $300 to attend the sessions of the convention at Boston and he felt well repaid.

Rev. Britton Ross, pastor of Melrose Baptist church, Oakland, Calif., will preach for Pastor Troy at both of the services of Sunday. This brother is a very successful Christian worker and is well known in the Southland. Rev. Troy plans to be present at both services and the usual 6 o'clock open air service will be prosecuted with renewed vigor.

Mr. Roy Kent, the good looking superintendent of the Baptist Bible school, is casting his eyes about in these days for more scholars and workers who will attend and also push when necessary. He announces classes for all grades. The B. Y. P. U. is making great progress under the leadership of Mr. Kendrick. Regular session at 6:30.

LUTHERAN BOOSTERS

This coming Sunday promises to be a wondrous one for the First English Evangelical Lutheran congregation of our city. It is not only Whit Sunday, the Pentecost memorial, but this interesting church will be visited by about thirty "Lutheran Boosters" from the First Lutheran church of Los Angeles, coming out in autos to encourage this worthy work. Of the number Mr. Johnson will present "The Value of Having a Church Home;" Dr. Kuhns, "The Importance of a Lutheran Church in a Community;" and Mr. Fisher, "Does the Lutheran Church Meet the Religious Needs of Today?"

Prof. Laichinger of our city will present the following musical program:

Organ voluntary, "Hallejujah Chorus" from "The Messiah," (Handel).

Anthem by the choir, "Consider and Hear Me, O, Lord My God." (Carl Pfuelger.)

Offertory solo, "If With all Your Hearts Ye Truly Seek Me," from "Elijah." (Mendelssohn.

Gospel solo, "When My Soul Reaches Home."

Organ postlude, grand march from "Aida." (Verdi.)

Vocal solo, selected—Miss Byloff.

A number of members are expected to be received at this service, making the day for our Lutheran interests long to be remembered. Let all the Lutheran friends and all others interested avail themselves of this exceptionally promising program for this coming Sunday. "Come thou with us and we will do thee good."

BIBLE LECTURE AROUSES KEEN INTEREST

W. Homer Lee

A stirring lecture—a friendly discussion—scriptural questions answered—this and much more is what is anticipated for the lecture Sunday evening, May 23, at 7:30, at the Masonic Temple, another phase of the subject, "Christ's Return to Earth, How, When, Why?" quoting largely from the word of God concerning the promised kingdom "wherein dwelleth righteousness."

W. Homer Lee, formerly of Chicago but now of Los Angeles, has a grasp of the scriptural teaching on this subject that promises a rare treat to his hearers. All Christians are earnestly requested to "reason together" out of the scriptures.

Mr. Lee treats of the plan of God dispensationally, believing that by this method only can seemingly contradictory scriptures be harmonized. (For instance, Matt. 7:13, 14 and Isa. 35:8, Luke 13:23 and 24 and Rev. 22:17). obeying the injunction of 2nd Tim. 2:15, "Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the worth of truth."

Opportunity will be given for reasonable, reverent questions on texts brought to the attention by the lectures, questions to be written and handed to one of the ushers. We believe all devout students of the Word will be pleased and profited by attending. Seats free. No collection.

FIRE PROTECTION EXHIBIT

on the forests. This telephone is connected with the telephone in the lookout and with a supervisor's telephone at the desk of the demonstrator by slack lines attached to tree trunks on swinging insulators, just as the line is installed on a national forest. This manner of construction enables the line to stand the stress of the elements through the winter and prevents the wire being broken when a tree falls.

The latest type of fire-fighting tool box equipped with shovels, rakes, hoes, axes, canvas waterbags and buckets, canteens, lanterns for fighting fires at night, torches fot setting back fires, nesting cooking utensils, and emergency rations, occupies a place near the lookout house.

Beside the desk of the demonstrator, who plays the part of the national forest supervisor, is hung a master fire map of a forest, similar to the one in the lookout house. On this map is shown the location of every trail, bridge, road, telephone line, telephone station, ranger station, fire-fighting toolbox and lookout station. At the locations of the lookout points are protractors oriented to correspond with the protractors at those stations. This map enables the supervisor to locate a fire directly from the reports of the lookouts without any mathematical calculations, and to place to the best possible advantage the force of men available for fire fighting.

Fire warning posters and rules concerning care with fire in the forests are posted upon three trunks and in other conspicuous places through the exhibit as they are in the forests.

Seed Notes

Books! Books! Books! There seemingly is no end to them. Each recurring year finds thousands more added to the large list. Every conceivable human consideration has volumes on it, in every human language under Heaven. Libraries, private and public, are found everywhere. Scarcely a home without a few books, magazines and papers of some kind. But after all amidst this world-supply of reading material, it is not supposed one should read everything to attain the mark of being educated. Rather it is a wise choice of the great multitude of reading fitting both mind and heart for better manhood, better citizenship, better companionship with men and God.

It is a great feat of knowledge to know, especially for the young, what books to read and why they ought to be read. If the habit is not formed before 30 the chances are against having a love for reading. Notwithstanding among thousands of young men and women the true value of time is scarcely considered. So much precious time is worse than wasted because of the frivolous readings, trash and dangerous literature they allow to pass into their mind and heart.

Thousands will acknowledge it is reading makes the man or unmakes him both for time or eternity and perhaps both. For what is read passes into personal thought, and in that privacy the mind will call to stand out before it what passed in from the printed or written page. Wisdom will lead to read only the best books and papers, that are strong, pure and elevating, helpful and invigorating, that will make you think along that same line. When we have time to read only a few books in our busy lives it is sinful and soul damaging to pour into mind and heart anything that fails to make us the better for the reading and thinking.

To read history, poetry, biography, science, fiction, art, travels and the like is very good, but to leave out religious books, which are the best published for the high merit of their thought, feeling and purity of diction, elegance of style, etc., makes our personal education defective. The most intelligent and conscientious men and women, with the highest, purest motives to do good and honor God and help our fellowmen as a rule we find in religious books.

What is termed "religious reading" of course includes the Bible, the best and purest and most helpful book of all; commentaries, Bible histories, biographies, books on Bible lands and customs, devotional reading, prayers, sermons, religious essays, lives of Christians, reformers, missionaries and others who were religious heroes.

Reading the Bible will help to store the mind and heart with its precious promises, precepts, commands, glad tidings, salvation. Moral feeling and sentiment are cultivated. The bad are made good. The Bible will regulate our thoughts, affections, speech, behavior. A knowledge of what the Bible has done will make us love it all the more.

OTHER SIDE OF THE PICTURE

"Aha, Mrs. Grogan, I come in to tell you how sorry I am for yez bad luck. I hear your man Mike lost his election bet with Tim Clancey and had to trundle him in a wheelbarrow three miles and back to the King's bridge, and the crowd guying Mike something awful. It's sorry I am for the ridicule he brought on you."

"Ridicule me pocket, Mrs. Murphy, there's no flies on that man Mike av mine, 'tho 'tis dangerous to praise him except behind his back. Whin he found he'd got to wheel Clancy thim six miles he wint to a moving picture man and got a hundred dollars cash for the film rights, and th' while triumphial march wid the crowd raising ructions is to be at the picture show week after next. Come in and see me new gas range, Mrs. Murphy; 'tis a pity yer own husband is such a loafer."
